CAROL'S COMMENTS

The summary of facts comes from the Air Force Casualty file. There is a casualty file kept on every man who was lost during the war. Each of the services Air Force, Army, Marines, and Navy had their own casualty file and at the beginning of the war the individual services were tasked to keep files on their loses.

David's original casualty reports are included. Note on the final casualty report it is stamped POW MIA to KIA. The question here is how does a man in captivity go missing from a prison system? Do you think the enemy would just lose their captives? Note that the reason given for declaring David dead is for "termination of pay and allowances".

SUMMARY OF FACTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES

1. Lieutenant Colonel David L. Hrdlicka, 476-28-0663FR, was the pilot of the lead aircraft in a flight of four F-105s which departed Takhli Air Base, Thailand, at 0735, 18 May 1965, on an interdiction/bombing mission of a segment of road in the vicinity of Sam Neus, Laos. The flight arrived in their assigned target area without incident and was forced to circle the area for approximately 15-20 minutes until the low cloud cover abated and allowed recognition of the target. Colonel Hrdlicka descended through the cloud cover and initiated his attack on the target, followed by the other flight members. As he was completing his pass, Colonel Hrdlicka radioed that he had a fire warning light on and the pilot of the number two sircraft confirmed that his sircraft was on fire. The aircraft continued climbing until reaching approximately 10,000 feet and at about 0850 Colonel Hrdlicka ejected and deployed a good parachute. The pilots of the number three and four aircraft attained a higher altitude to alert search and rescue forces while the wingman remained in close proximity to the lead aircraft and observed Colonel Hrdlicks descend in his parachute. He was seen to land in a valley clearing near a small village located approximately nine miles east-southeast of Sam Neua, Laos. The wingman flew toward the downed member but was driven back to a higher altitude by intense flak. Circling at 9,000-12,000 feet, he could not see any movement on the ground, but after about 10-15 minutes, the wingman noticed that Colonel Hrdlicka's parachute was being folded up. In a low level pass over the area he caught a fleeting glimpse of approximately six to eight people standing as though they were looking in his direction. One person had the parachute under his arm. The people were dressed in dark colored clothing and one person, taller than the others, was dressed in a flying suit. It was impossible to determine if the taller person was walking with the others or if he was being supported by them in an upright position. The wingman watched the group enter the village and disappear. The wingman refueled and returned to base; and when he reentered the area to assist in the search for the downed member, two helicopters and four T-28 aircraft were at the scene. The T-28 flight circled the area at a low altitude, but the members did not see any signs of life in the village. One of the helicopters landed near a friendly village about eight to ten miles from where Colonel Hrdlicka had parachuted, and the villagers reported that the downed pilot had been captured by the Pathet Lao. Although Colonel Hrdlicka carried electronic emergency equipment, no distress calls were received from him after ejection. Due to negative findings the search was terminated. On the basis of the above information, Colonel Hrdlicka was placed in a detained status on 24 May 1965. The term "detained" was later changed to "interned" as directed by the Department of Defense. Colonel Hrdlicks was continued in an interned status at the expiration of the initial 12-month period of absence in accordance with the provisions of Section 1005, Title 50, USC (comparable to Section 555, Title 37).

- 2. Beginning on 22 May 1966, a number of reports emanated from the Pathet Lao telling of the capture of Colonel Hrdlicks, including on two occasions the playing of tape recordings allegedly made by Colonel Hrdlicks. In addition, two letters purported to be from Colonel Hrdlicks to Prince Souphanouvong, decrying US involvement in Laos and asking to be released, were propagandized.
- 3. A Hanoi publication, Quan Doi Mhan Dan, printed a photograph on 22 July 1966 of an individual in a flight suit being closely followed by an armed enemy soldier, presumably a Pathet Lao. The article identified the individual in the photograph as Colonel Hrdlicks. Positive identification was made by the next of kin. The same photograph appeared in the 31 August 1966 issue of the Soviet newspaper, Pravds.
- 4. On 5 May 1967, the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) in Geneva, Switzerland, was advised by a Laotian representative that the Pathet Lao reported the capture of two Americans, Colonel Hrdlicka and Mr. Ernest C. Brace, a civilian. Mr. Brace was repatriated during Operation HCMECOMING and in his debriefing he reported having no knowledge of the capture or the fate of Colonel Hrdlicka. Although several of the repatriates recalled seeing the photographs of the individual identified as Colonel Hrdlicka in Pravda and Quan Doi Nhan Dan, none of the returnees saw or heard of Colonel Hrdlicka while in captivity.
- 5. Mr. Sot Pethrasi, the Lao Patriotic Front representative in Vientiane, was contacted numerous times through the International Committee of the Red Cross concerning an accounting for missing and captured Americans in Laos, without results. He stated that it was very difficult to get information from the Lao Patriotic Front headquarters at Sam Neua, Laos. Consistent with North Vietnam's position, he and other Lao Communist officials claimed that US pilots did not have the legal status of prisoners of war because there was no declaration of war; therefore, their acts were "piratical" or "criminal." He claimed that US prisoners were treated as well as the situation permitted and in most cases they were kept under guard within the confines of a village. Subsequent to the signing of the peace agreement with North Vietnam, Mr. Pethrasi stated publicly on numerous occasions that there are no American military prisoners in Laos.
- 6. No accounting for Colonel Hrdlicks was ever received from the North Vietnamese government, the Neo Lao Hak Sat (Pathet Lao) or their allies.
